JAPS ELATED OVER RECENT VICTORIES

Claim Port Arthur is Almost Conquered
---Big Battle Yet Possible.

Tokio, Nov. 29.—It is reported that the Japanese at Port Arthur made a night attack on "243 Meter Hill," which they succeeded in taking. It is estimated that ninety per cent. of the occupation of Port Arthur is now accomplished. With this height in their possession no part of the harbor is concealed from the Japanese.

Skirmishes Are Frequent.
St. Petersburg, Nov. 29.—Dispatches from the front report frequent skirmishes on the Russian left flank near the Shakhe river. Apparently the Japanese are continuing the development of the turning movement in this direction, the beginning of which was reported last week.

Japs Place Big Guns.
With Russian forces at Shengking, Nov. 29.—The attack by the Japanese upon Rennenkampf's position November 24, resulted in three days' fighting at Tsinkhetchen, near Da Pass.

Though the Japanese have been pushed, fighting continues. The Japanese have succeeded in placing several big siege guns in position, with which they will be able to seriously harass the Russians.

Bay Be Big Battle.
London, Nov. 29.—Generals Kuropatkin and Shakhderff are sending daily long detailed accounts of apparently rather unimportant fighting, which may, however, possibly turn out to be the beginning of another great battle deciding the fate of Mukden. The Japanese in London decline to believe there will be a cessation of hostilities.

St. Petersburg, Nov. 29.—Gen. Kuropatkin reports that fighting east of Mukden was resumed yesterday near Tsinrehen and continued until 11 this morning. He adds: "We collected the dying near our positions, being the center and right flank. Up to noon we buried 230 men of the Seventh regiment."

It is denied Again.
Mukden, Nov. 29.—Further denial of the reported death of Gen. Kuroki is made by the Japanese cavalrymen captured by the Russians.

Three Days' Skirmishing.
St. Petersburg, Nov. 29.—Kuropatkin reports that there has been active skirmishing on his left flank for three days. The opinion is now expressed by the general staff that the Japanese intend taking the offensive as they can't afford to wait till the Russians are further reinforced.

MARSHALL COUNTY RAPPED AGAIN

Circuit Judge Reed Knocks Out Local Option.

Decides that a Saloon License Must Be Issued for Gilbertsville.

VICTORY FOR SALOON MEN

Circuit Judge William Reed this morning decided the mandamus suit brought by Attorneys Oliver & Oliver for John Counts to compel county clerk J. N. Henson, at Benton, Marshall county, to issue and accept money for a liquor license to do business at Gilbertsville, in favor of Counts, and the license will be issued tomorrow morning.

This is an interesting case and in deciding it Judge Reed held the decision of Special Judge Campbell Flournoy, and decided that the local option law in Benton was null and void on a technicality, because the petition was not filed in open court.

After the decision Counts, who was then in the saloon business in Paducah, went to Gilbertsville where there is a big railroad construction camp, to start a saloon. Henson, the county clerk, refused to accept money for and issue the license and Counts went into court to compel him to do so, resulting as above.

Counts has been running a saloon for some time, feeling that the court would uphold him and the issuance of the license is merely a matter of legal form.

One interesting fact in connection with the liquor business in Marshall county, will develop, it is said, when J. L. Evans opens a saloon in the new portion of Gilbertsville which was recently incorporated. The new portion of the town is said to not be legally incorporated because of a technicality. This is a matter of discussion among the attorneys interested in the Counts fight, and they will watch the result with interest.

—The Woman's Missionary society of the Broadway Methodist church will meet tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock at the church.

HATFIELD BAND IN ANOTHER FEUD

Two Have Already Given Up Their Lives.

It is Feared Another Bloody Chapter Will Be Added to Family History.

ALL ARE DARING PEOPLE

Rosnoke, Va., Nov. 29.—The famous Hatfield band is now engaged in a deadly feud with a family named Duty, living at Pigeon Creek, Mingo county, W. Va. Already two lives, one from each side, have been sacrificed, and it is expected that much more blood will be shed before the feud is ended.

Harvey Duty, head of the Duty family, has ten grown sons, who are agitating the feud with the Hatfields. The Dutys were once the staunchest friends of the Hatfield gang and aided them in their feud against the McCoy's by giving them shelter, food and clothing. The trouble originated with George Hensley, who married Mary Hatfield, daughter of "Devil Anse." Hensley lived with "Devil Anse" on Island creek and because he had become one of the Hatfield gang, became overbearing and tried to terrorize the Duty boys.

On an election day some time ago Hensley swore that before the sun set he would kill Morgan and Jake Duty, and went in ambush for them about a mile from their home. The Dutys became aware of Hensley's plan and crept up and killed him from behind.

While the Hatfields believed that Hensley had been killed by the Dutys, they were not absolutely certain. Accordingly "Devil Anse" and Capt. Hatfield began investigating and found tracks that led to the Duty boys' home. Capt. Hatfield and "Devil Anse" went after them and demanded their surrender. Instead of surrendering the ten Duty boys drew their Winchester and made them drop their guns and leave.

The Hatfields were very angry and swore vengeance on the Duty boys. A few days ago John Daniels, a colleague of the Hatfields, retaliated by killing Marion Duty, youngest of the brothers, one night as he was returning from a visit to his sweetheart. All nine of the remaining Marion Duty's brothers have sworn to die or to avenge their youngest brother.

The Dutys, while they own a large farm and are prosperous, are considered the most daring band in West Virginia. Both sides are armed with Krag-Jorgensen rifles and it will be a bloody affair when they meet.

LEITCHFIELD FIRE EARLY THIS MORNING

Considerable Loss in Grayson County.

Young Lady Rescued in the Nick of Time From Second Story.

VERY LITTLE INSURANCE

Leitchfield, Ky., Nov. 29.—A disastrous fire started in John Coppage's dwelling on Main street this morning at 1 o'clock.

A strong wind carried the flames to the Leitchfield Masonic building with it to the office rooms entirely destroying the building.

Flames were carried to the adjacent building of Will Cunningham, the Grayson Gazette building, Leslie Vannorte, and G. W. Sterlie's large frame building, L. Maszy's residence, and James McClure's frame building, entirely destroying them all.

The Leitchfield Masonic building was insured for two thousand and the Grayson Gazette building was partly insured. Attorneys occupying office rooms in the Masonic building saved their libraries.

Miss Annie Sterlie, sister of G. W. Sterlie, was dragged from the second story of the Coppage building in a semi-conscious state, falling into the street. She sustained a slight injury. There is no insurance on the other buildings destroyed.

She leaves besides her husband, Miss Cammie Mitchell, of Harbour's millinery establishment, a sister, and several other sisters in Trigg county. She was well known and popular among her acquaintances.

KENTUCKY SUFFERS FROM LONG DROUTH

There Has Been Little Rain Since July 3rd.

This Section is Well Supplied By River But Many Localities Suffer Greatly.

NO RELIEF YET IN SIGHT

The fires that have been devastating parts of this section have broken out in Illinois just across the river. Last night the light from the conflagration could be plainly seen, but so far as known no great damage was done. The fires on this side of the river have about burned themselves out, or been extinguished.

The drouth is becoming quite serious, however, and water is in places in great demand. The railroads and farmers have to haul much water to keep going, and no rain is in sight.

This section of the state has probably suffered less than any other, as the three rivers nearby furnish an abundance of water, and our own water company in Paducah could supply the whole state if it had pipes enough.

Never before in the history of Kentucky, however, has so much damage and suffering been caused by the drouth as this year in some places. The drouth has affected nearly every branch of industry, and still there are no signs of rain. No rain of any consequence has fallen since July 3. At that time, however, the ground was very wet and remained wet for some time, which allowed fruits to ripen and the summer vegetables and grains to mature.

The country consumes more water each year than it did the previous year, and perhaps ten times as much water is used in Kentucky now than a few decades ago, not only because of increased population, but because of factory needs of water, watering streets and numerous other purposes for which water was formerly little used, if at all. The drouth this year, besides being of longer duration than the drouth of 1854, is worse for the reason that water is more badly needed. Railroads are hauling water for their own use; farmers, dairymen, nurserymen and gardeners are complaining, and the long continued dry spell is the general subject of conversation on the streets.

Most of yesterday he spent paying up his debts and saying goodbye to friends to whom he declared he was going away for good. He leaves a widow.

NOT FOR BEST FARM In the State

"I saw so much in the papers about the wonderful cures effected by Pyramid Pile Cure, I determined to give it a trial. I bought from my druggist one fifty-cent box and used it as directed, and by the time I had used the last 'pyramid' I was entirely cured; in four days after I began to use the 'pyramids' all inflammation was gone. I was perfectly easy all the time, the excessive discharge stopped at once, and stools became easy and gentle.

"I was unable to get my own firewood for four months, and half the time when I could walk at all I had to walk half bent. I used many pile remedies, salves and ointments, all to no effect until I used one fifty-cent box of Pyramid Pile Cure and was cured.

"I would not be afflicted as I was four months ago for the best farm in the state of Arkansas. I can give proof and reference of the wonderful cure to all who are afflicted as I was. Please publish my letter that I may advise the afflicted." W. E. Wallis, Piggot, Ark., Box 26.

The experience of Mr. Wallis is that of thousands of others who suffer for years with the most painful forms of hemorrhoids, or piles, and after trying everything they hear of, give up all hope of a cure and look for temporary relief only. To all such a little book published by Pyramid Drug Co., Marshall, Mich., brings glad tidings, as it tells all about the cause and cure of piles, and is sent free for the asking.

ESTIMABLE LADY

MRS. RUTH TORIAN SUCCEDES TO A COMPLICATION OF DISEASES.

Mrs. O. T. Torian, aged 64, died yesterday afternoon at 4:40 o'clock at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Will Hubbard, Nineteenth and Washington streets, after a long illness from a complication of diseases. The deceased had been in a precarious condition for several days past, and her death, while it brought sorrow to a host of friends, was not unexpected.

The deceased was formerly Miss Ruth Lander, and was born in Missouri. She moved to Hopkinsville with her parents early in life and was married in 1868 to Mr. Torian. Twenty years ago they came to Paducah, and for many years had lived where the deceased died.

A husband and one daughter, Mrs. Polly Hubbard, and two sisters and one brother survive. The latter are: Mrs. Ellen Morrow, Paducah, and Mrs. Mary Cade, of Alabama, and Mr. Frank Lander, of Columbia, Tenn.

The funeral took place at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon at the Broadway Methodist church, Rev. T. J. Newell officiating. The burial was at Oak Grove.

Close Call For Expressman.
Mr. Harry Simmons, driver for the Southern Express Co., had a narrow escape from serious injury Saturday night about 8:20 o'clock while preparing to unload an express wagon from the N. C. & St. L. train.

He drove up to the car and started to swing off the wagon, but his foot slipped on some oyster juice and threw him off the wagon. His chin just grazed the door of the car as he fell and had it struck the base of the door, might have broken his neck. Mr. Simmons escaped with bruises about the legs, his left leg being badly skinned.

The American Federation of Labor voted to meet next year in Pittsburgh. Pittsburgh was selected over St. Louis, Toronto and Niagara Falls. Samuel Gompers was re-elected president.

B. WEILLE & SON'S HANDSOME BUILDING

Formally Thrown Open to the Public Last Night.

The Building One Mass of Floral Decorations and Thronged
With Callers.

THE PEER OF ANY ANYWHERE

B. Weille & Son had the formal opening of their remodeled store with its handsome new addition last night and the occasion was one to be remembered. The hour for opening was set at 7:30 but long before that time the street in front of the establishment was thronged with people, and during the hours of the reception, from 7:30 to 10 it is estimated over three thousand called.

The store was very handsomely decorated for the occasion and showed off to great advantage. The first thing seen upon entering was a tastefully decorated gold ladder, the ladder of Famous, the rungs indicating the different steps of progress of the firm from 1860, the date of its establishment, to the present date. In the windows, too, were similar ladders, on the rungs of which were the catch phrases of the firm which have been used extensively and with great success by the firm in its advertising.

The floral decorations of the interior were done with much taste. Around the cornice of the fixtures and suspended from the electric chandeliers, were streamers of artificial chrysanthemums and these were supplemented with running similar. Potted plants, palms and ferns were used in profusion and on the show cases were the handsome floral offerings of friends of the firm. The stairway leading to the office in the rear of the building was banked with flowers.

The entire railing around the office was one mass of chrysanthemums with the greeting, "Welcome," done in red. An interesting feature of the decorations was a large life-size portrait of B. Weille Sr., deceased, the founder of the establishment, which hung on the office balcony.

At the rear of the building, at the foot of the stairway leading to the office, was Mr. Ben Weille's automobile, very handsomely decorated with pink carnations. In it sat Miss Marie Weille, Miss Lydia Weille and Miss Azalee Reeves, distributing tea souvenirs. Mrs. James Clements decorated the auto and it was a credit to her art.

The members of the firm greeted their friends at the entrance and were assisted in receiving by their clerks, all in evening attire. Deal's orchestral band stationed on the office floor rendered a program of popular selections.

Messrs. Weille have every reason to be proud of their establishment, and certainly have cause for feeling proud of the evidence of their popularity given them by their callers last night. They have a store that would be a credit to any city in the country.

No more enterprising or popular firm will be found anywhere than B. Weille & Son and their great success is the source of much gratification to their many friends. That was evidenced last night by the throng who called and by the numerous messages received from friends in other cities as well as floral offerings from the city and other cities.

Theatrical Notes

"A Hot Old Time" this season is a melange of mirth and song and numbers forty people, a notable example being that prince of jolly comedians, William McRobie, who will be seen as "Sandy McPherson" and Florence Hughes in the role of "Mrs. General Blazer." Amongst others are such well known New York favorites as Joseph Weber, Victor Stone, Minnie Jarbeau, Babette Sheldon, Harry Yost, Daisy Dean and twenty pretty show girls, each one having been selected on account of her extreme artistic temperament. The company is at The Kentucky tonight.

Al G. Field was greeted by his customary large and enthusiastic audience last night at the Kentucky theater. He has one of the largest and best troops he ever had this season, and although the performance was perceptibly out in the first part, Doc Quigley failed to appear and the acrobatic novelty of the Avalos was cut out on account of an accident to the man, the show was one of the best ever seen in Paducah.

Jolly Al Field has some of the funniest men on the stage with him this time, and Reese Prosser, always popular here, received his usual ovation and sings as sweetly as ever.

The performance opens in a rotunda of the Palace of the Muses and the scene is beautiful. The first part is "the evolution of minstrelsy," and concludes with a dancing divertissement, "The head waiters." In the first part among the songs are Billy Clark's "Marina," Harry Gosseline's "Good-bye, Little Girl, Good-bye," Tommy Donnelly's "Lindy Lou" and John Healy's "Isabella." Reese Prosser, who is a New Albany, Ind., boy, made a big hit with "Tie All I Ask," and followed it for an encore with a scenic presentation, "In the Shadow of St. Paul's," in which he was assisted by a full choir. This was one of the beautiful features of the many on the programme.

The skit "Aftermath" takes the place of the one given earlier in the season, "Esopus vs. Oyster Bay," which had to be changed up after Roosevelt's election. Tommy Donnelly caricatures the president, Al Field, Judge Parker, John Healy Tom Watson and Billy Clark Vice-President Fairbanks. It is a very funny act, and never fails to provoke laughter at the expense of members of all political parties.

Next comes Billy Clarke, "the man behind the fun." His monologue is lively, and he calls it "mind wandering." He gets off many new jokes and some of them are of the "side-splitting" caliber. His make-up, with his balloon sleeves, his "shirt waist" and his short pants, gets the audience in a roar even before he opens his mouth.

The Quaker City Quartet, the musical blacksmiths, are entertaining, and Cornallo and Eddie do a good comedy acrobatic stunt.

The performance is concluded with a realistic spectacular review of the military service of the United States, the pictures portraying Washington crossing the Delaware, Hickory Jackson at New Orleans, the Alamo, the destruction of the Maine, and a grand tableau, "Old Glory." Just before the concluding tableau a series of military maneuvers is given by a company of excellently drilled men.

Commencing with a ten cent matinee tomorrow afternoon, The Van Dyke and Eaton Company begin their engagement at The Kentucky for four matinees and nights. This company has long been a favorite with Paducah people and that they will have a successful business is assured. Miss Ollie Eaton and Mr. Whit Brandon, are playing the leads this season and are putting on some of the very best plays that money and time can produce. The specialties alone are well worth your time and money. They are by members of the company and include Fred Langley in his wonderful "Roulette" hoop rolling, Jas. McCoy, in comedy and monologue, Bessie Jackson, in serio-comic recitations, Willard Foster, in illustrated songs, and McCoy and Jackson in musical and comical divertissement. Some of the bills to be produced are "In the East," "Faust," (Morrison's version), "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," and "The James Boys in Missouri." Ladies will be admitted free on Wednesday night under the usual conditions.

On account of the engagement of Mr. James Young, of the Viola Allen company, for a lecture at the High school on the 5th, the play to have been presented on the afternoon of the 3d by the High school dramatic club, will probably be postponed, as admission will be charged to both affairs.

"There is one item which you may make a note of daily in your railroad notes," an I. O. official stated to a news reporter this morning as he was passing through the shops, "and this is the derailment in the cinder pit. We have one every day when we move cars of cinders out of the pit. The cinders fall from the dies of the cars and cover the track and when we go to pull the cars out the wheels climb upon the cinders and when they run off generally fall to hit the track again. This is the only objection we have to the cinder pit."

WERE GRATEFUL

AN INTERESTING NOTE FOUND IN A BOX CAR.

A car repairer this morning went into a "bad order" box car and found pinned to the door a note which read: "To the Railroad Company:

"We rode in this box car from New Orleans to Jackson, Tenn. We had the cash but wanted to see the fair and thank you for the favors in not molesting us in our palace car.

THREE OF US."
Inside the car were found several empty beer and whiskey bottles, some remnants of ham sandwiches and a cheese. Broken pieces of crackers, bits of oakes and the stumps of cigars and cigarettes and some indication of the consumption of plug tobacco. The car was partly covered in one end with straw which must have served for a bed. The car was sent here from the Tennessee division for repairs and must have come up from the south as a dead-head freight car until it had to be sent to the shops for repairs.

This is one of the many curious notes found in box cars. One car repairer is said to have quite a collection of notes and odd things found in cars, which were left by hoboes stealing rides.

TO CONFER

RAILROAD OFFICIALS HERE TO TALK OVER BUSINESS.

Mr. A. H. Egan, superintendent of the Louisville division of the L. O. & N. R. Co., and Mr. J. J. Gavin, superintendent of the Tennessee division, and Trainmasters L. E. McCabe, Paducah, and T. L. Dubbs, Tennessee districts, will this afternoon hold a conference to discuss the business of the road on the two divisions.

The two divisions are very important ones and since the change of schedule on the road, there has been some little confusion on freight runs. The officials will look into the conditions of the road and see where improvement is possible. They will return home tonight.

STILL RUSHING INTO LAWSUITS.

There may be more than mere opposition to a possible competitor crossing the track, in the Illinois Central's objection to the interurban railway crossing at Eighth and Trimble streets. It was not long ago that a loud wail went up from a few people in Paducah about the crossings at Broadway, Tennessee street and other places. The tracks ought to be elevated, should go through tunnels, or automatic gates should be put there, is what they said. It was dangerous to life and property and the railroad should be made to go to the expense of several hundred thousand dollars to elevate its tracks. Just think of a town like this having elevated tracks! That spasm passed away, however, and now we find the same people and officials clamoring for double crossing at Eighth and Trimble streets.

This is acknowledged to be one of the most dangerous intersections in the city. It is in reality a part of the railroad yard. It was bought by the railroad along with the remainder of its property, and has long been part of the yard, but the city has been allowed to use it as a street by the railroad company. Not content with this,
the city without investigating its authority, goes ahead and prepares to give another corporation the right to build intersecting tracks on the railroad's private property, thus making the crossing doubly dangerous.

Even if this property had been dedicated to the city, and the city had a perfect right to grant right-of-way over it, and could do it without perhaps years of litigation, it would require only a look at the locality to convince anyone that the crossing is already too dangerous, and there is no justification for making it more so.

It is the duty of the city solicitor to tell the general council in unequivocal language that the railroad owns the crossing, and allows the city to use it only as an accommodation.
The switches it is building it reserved the right to build when it gave the city the privilege of using part of the railroad yards for a street.

There is alleged to be no record of a dedication of any of the property for a street, and if there is none, certainly the city has no right to it as a street, and no authority to grant right-of-way over it.

The public in general will hope for a speedy settlement of the question without any litigation. The city has enough lawsuits on its hands now, and should not engage in another,
simply to give a railway the privilege of making an already dangerous crossing more dangerous. If the city wants the two roads to cross there, let it grant right-of-way and then keep hands off, and when the electric line is built, let the electric line fight its own battles and cross if it has a legal right. There does not appear to be any occasion for the city's taking up the fight in the courts. The city is already enjoying all the privileges it desires at that crossing.

The only thing to do is to use a little common sense. The electric railway can be built without passing Eighth and Trimble streets. The city can extricate itself from the unpleasant entanglement without a lawsuit.
The question is, will it? Will calm, common sense prevail, or will the city make its usual display of stupidity?

A Washington dispatch to a democratic paper says: "The tone of the democratic voice in the coming session of congress will be largely decided by the attitude of the republican majority." Sure, Mike. This is what has made the democratic party the laughing stock of the world today, and made its most significant emblem the likeness of a donkey. It is one of the causes that have led to its inevitable defeat,—this waiting to see what the republicans want to do, and then do the opposite. If the democrats would unite with the republicans on those things they can consistently regard as good for the whole country—and there are many of them—they would have the confidence of more people. Instead they wait until the republicans have taken a position and then take the opposite, no matter what or how ridiculous it may be. If it will do the democracy any good to oppose the republican majority during the coming session, it is to be hoped they will indulge to their heart's content. It is certain it will do the republicans
no harm.

The weather we have had for the past several months would have given the city nearly a year of uninterrupted work on reconstructed streets, if the administration hadn't been so slow and delayed matters so long.
There has been practically no rain
since July, and all this time the street paving, or reconstructing with the new compound, could have been going on and much of it completed.
The little we now have done is the penalty of our city officials being slow and incompetent to manage public business.

If there is not rain soon many of the streets will be almost ruined.
Some of them are now so ground up that they can hardly be driven over and many of them are the streets that were repaired only a few months ago. Paducah needs a system of street sprinkling that will keep the streets damp and compact the year around. The damage from dry weather often amounts to more than the total cost of street sprinkling for a year would be.

The big St. Louis exposition closes in a short time now, and it has been a vast success, although financially a rather expensive one. It was the greatest thing of its kind in the history of the world, and will likely be the last of any consequence for a great many years, as the people are tired of them.

CITY UP AGAINST ANOTHER LAWSUIT

Trying to Give a Right-of-Way
Over Private Property.

Railroad Company Claims Privilege of Building as Many Tracks
as Desired.

LITIGATION NOW IN PROSPECT

A lively fight is now on between the city, the Illinois Central and the projected electric railway promoters, over the right-of-way granted the electric company at Eighth and Trimble streets.

The Illinois Central objected to the tracks crossing its line at that intersection, claiming that it would make it too dangerous, a position fully justified by the facts, as anyone can see by visiting the locality. The general council paid no attention to this objection and despite the menace
it might prove to human life by allowing too many railroad tracks at that corner, granted the right-of-way.

The Illinois Central then took matters into its own hands, and began building switches across the crossing. It claims that the property belongs to the railroad, and has never been dedicated to the city for a street.
This is borne out by the records.

Last Friday night the city solicitor was instructed to make an investigation, and find out who owned the property, and if it developed that the city had a right to it as a street, to proceed to take legal steps to stop the switch laying.

The solicitor took no steps, and meanwhile the railroad was still building tracks. Now it has so many that the railroad commissioners will never permit a crossing there.

The courts may order the tracks removed—in the course of time, but the tracks are now there for a long time. The case will have to go to all the courts before the company can be compelled to tear up the tracks, and if the interurban is ever built and crosses at Eighth and Trimble, it will be a long time before it crosses.

The railroad company seems to have decided the better of the controversy. What the city calls a street there is simply part of the I. C. yards. It was bought by the railroad when the remainder of the property there was purchased, and has been used extensively for many years for switching.

Several years ago during Mayor Lang's administration, it was desired to have an outlet somewhere between Sixth and Ninth streets. Seventh and Eighth streets being closed by the railroad, as it owned the property through which the street would have to be built. The city now claims that the railroad gave the city the right to use a part of it as a street provided the city graveled it, and allowed the railroad to put as many switches there as it desired.
The railroad is not trying to close the street now, but is putting down
"as many switches as it desires," and it is not believed that the city can stop it.

The railroad and telegraph committee of the general council last night met and ordered Solicitor Puryear to proceed to take such action as may be deemed necessary in the case. He said today that he would confer with the railroad attorneys and if no agreement could be reached would proceed to bring suit.

The railroad attorneys when asked about the Illinois Central's position, stated that their only position was that the property over which the city attempts to give right-of-way is private property belonging to the railroad company, and the latter has never surrendered its ownership in any shape or form.

Former Mayor James M. Lang said today that in his opinion the city made a mistake in doing anything to cause the railroad company to build the number of tracks at the crossing it is now building.

"The railroad," said the ex-mayor,

"never dedicated the property to the city. When I was mayor we hadn't as many fire stations as we have now, and it was very necessary that we secure an outlet to the north side through Trimble street. At that time the north side was practically shut off beyond the railroad, from Sixth to Tenth streets. Seventh street was closed, and Ninth street was dangerous from tracks and the 'Y' around which every train backed.
"I went to work, and after about three years, obtained permission from the railroad company to use property that would be Eighth street if extended. The conditions were that the city keep it graveled, and the railroad company reserved the right to put down as many switches or tracks as it deemed necessary. In other words, the railroad simply gave the city the use of its property without surrendering its rights. It can close the street entirely now if it desires, so far as I am informed.

"The city, however, in my opinion,
has made a serious mistake in granting or trying to grant a right of way down Eighth street to a railway company. It is now the only outlet from Eighth to Tenth. Seventh street is closed and the Cairo line of the I. C.
now runs down Ninth street."

City Solicitor Puryear this morning stated that he found that the property belonged to the railroad company.
June 17, 1901, however, the city threatened to bring condemnation proceedings and get the property for a street, and the railroad company, on June 22, agreed to dedicate it and to allow the city the use of it, etc.
The formal dedication, however, was never made, it is claimed, although the city has since been allowed to use it as a street.

LEFT MATCHES

But the Thief Was Frightened
Away by Mr. Grouse.

Earlier in the Evening an Overcoat
Was Stolen Nearby.

Paducah seems to have a number of sneak thieves. It is not known whether they are paying us a visit on a tour of the section, or are simply returning to this avocation because of cool weather.

About 3 o'clock this morning Mr.
J. H. Grouse, who lives at Mr. R. C.
Davis' near Fifth and Madison streets, was aroused by his wife, who had been disturbed by a noise at the window. Mr. Grouse's voice frightened away the thief and it was found that he had entirely raised the window, and was trying to open the shutter when the noise awoke Mrs. Grouse.

On the window sill were four matches, and near the front door a few steps away was one that had been struck, evidently by the thief in trying to find the key hole. Mr. and Mrs. Grouse occupy a front room and the thief probably thought no one was inside, and once in he could make a tour of the house.

Earlier in the evening, before 9 o'clock, Mrs. Tom Settle and daughters, across the street at Fifth and Madison, heard some one enter a back room, and when one of them went back a few minutes later Mr. Tom Settle's overcoat had been stolen.

The police advise all citizens to watch out for coal, chicken and other petty thieves.

Tree Silk.

A kind of vegetable silk is obtained from a tree, growing to the size of an ordinary chestnut tree, which abounds in Paraguay. It can be woven into threads, but the chief use for it at present is that of stuffing quilts and cushions, for which purpose it seems well adapted on account of its extreme lightness. This silk resembles a glossy down and grows in bolls six inches long and about four and one half inches in diameter.

Not That Kind of Cooking.

(From the Cincinnati Enquirer.) "Mamma," said the pretty fluffy-haired girl, "I think I ought to go to a cooking school, don't you?" "It isn't necessary, my dear," replied the mother. "I can teach you to cook."

While the average man isn't bad enough to need reforming, he is not good enough sometimes to make a desirable husband.

Every woman loves to think of the time when a soft little body, all her own, will nestle in her bosom, fully satisfying the yearning which lies in the heart of every good woman. But yet there is a black cloud hovering about the pretty picture in her mind which fills her with terror. The dread of childbirth takes away much of the joy of motherhood. And yet it need not be so. For sometime there has been upon the market, well-known and recommended by physicians, a liniment called which makes childbirth as simple and easy as nature intended it. It is a strengthening, penetrating liniment, which the skin readily absorbs. It gives the muscles elasticity and vigor, prevents sore breasts, morning sickness and the loss of the girlish figure. An intelligent mother in Butler, Pa., says: "We used Mother's Friend again. I would obtain 9 bottles if I had to pay $5 per bottle for it."

Mother's Friend

Bowser Sleeps Out of Doors

He Puts Up a Hammock in the Back Yard on the Advice of His Doctor and Has a Trying Time of It.

[Copyright, 1904, by T. C. McClure.]
SOON after the Bowwers had finished dinner the other evening a package arrived at the basement door, and as the girl brought it up to the family room Mrs. Bowser glanced at it and said: "There must be some mistake. I have ordered nothing sent up today." "There is no mistake about it," replied Mr. Bowser. "That is a hammock I bought this afternoon." "But we have no place for a hammock." "Haven't we got a back yard?" "Yes, but there is no shady spot for a hammock." "I am not looking for shady spots, Mrs. Bowser. I want you to talk sensible for once in your life. Do you know that I have got to harden myself up for hot weather or run a terrible risk of a physical collapse?" "No, I didn't know it. I thought you were in splendid health. Only last night I heard you telling Brown—"

"Never mind what I told Brown. A man may be at death's door and yet not like to have people talking about it and sympathizing. I may look well and have a good appetite, but the fact remains that a puff would blow out the flame of life. I have kept this fact from you for weeks and weeks, but I feel that you ought to know it."

THE HAMMOCK WAS SLUNG BETWEEN TWO OF THE CLOTHESLINE POSTS.

"And that hammock is going to save you from being puffed out?" she asked as the family cat came out from under the piano to take a hand in the game.

"I hope and trust it is. Acting under the advice of one of the best doctors in town, I am going to try to harden myself and shall put that hammock up in the back yard this evening."

"And that will harden you?" "And I shall pass the night in the hammock—many nights. The doctor says I must have a free circulation of air, and that instead of avoiding the night dews I must revel in them, so to say. Man was never born to sleep in a bed as we do. Adam rested at night under a tree. So did all other men for hundreds of years. Whenever you find the hardest men you find men who keep in the open air by day and night. I have coddled myself up too much."

"Well, when you have a sore throat, a cold in the head, and are aching from head to foot with rheumatism, perhaps you'll keep on coddling," she answered. "Any doctor who told you such stuff for truth is an idiot."

"There you go!" exclaimed Mr. Bowser as he began to pace up and down the room, followed by the cat. "I might have known you wouldn't talk sense. I never start in to better my health but you oppose the idea. If you are hoping I may collapse on the street and be brought home as dead as a doornail, why don't you say so and have done with it?"

"Go ahead with your hammock cure," she quietly replied. "If the doctor said it would harden you up, then, of course, it will. Don't put the blame off on me, however."

"Blame? Blame? How can I blame you?" "I don't know, but you probably will."

"I'll probably do nothing of the kind! By George, but I wonder if there is another such aggravating woman on the face of this earth!"

Mrs. Bowser had nothing more to say. Mr. Bowser kicked things out of his way as he walked and the cat rubbed against the legs of the piano and saw fun ahead. Half an hour later the hammock was slung between two of the clothesline posts. It was a fairly dark evening, and Mr. Bowser congratulated himself that none of the neighbors had got on to his little scheme.

At 10 o'clock he was ready to try the cure. He tried to draw Mrs. Bowser into an argument about it, but she kept clear and went upstairs as he started out. Bareheaded and with coat and vest off he fell into the hammock with a grunt of satisfaction and began counting the stars in the vault above.

Unnoticed by him the cat had followed at his heels. The night cure was a thing new to him, and he went wandering about the yard in search of summer novelties. Ten minutes had passed, and Mr. Bowser had just inquired in a sneeze which set the hammock swinging, when the head of a neighbor's cat appeared above the fence. For a few brief seconds the Bowser cat and the interloper exchanged glances of hate, distrust and defiance and then coiled on top of the fence.

"By the great horn spoon!" ejaculated Mr. Bowser as he rolled about and finally fell out of the hammock. By the time he had hit the earth the interloper was a flicked feline and was heard scrambling over a fence three yards below.

It was evident that the cure had a few drawbacks, but after cursing softly to himself for a minute the patient climbed back into his hammock and tried to make himself believe that he already felt better. He shut his eyes tight, determined to sleep, and the preliminary tingle of a second sneeze was being faintly felt when there was a yelp and a hiss, and the cat went up the fence and over it like a flash, and a dog was left whining and growling within ten feet of the hammock. The canine had crept under the alley fence, and the Bowser cat hadn't waited to ask any questions.

"By thunder, but can't a man find five minutes' rest in his own back yard?" shouted Mr. Bowser as he rolled out and looked for a clothes prop as a weapon of offense.

He ran that dog three times across the yard before the animal could find the hole he came in at and get out again, and when he returned to the hammock the romance of the night was gone. If he hadn't caught sight of Mrs. Bowser peering from one of the back windows he might have decided to call things off till next night. That settled matters, however. He dropped into the hammock and huddled himself up, and the cat came back and sat on the fence and looked down upon him with gaudian eyes. Ten minutes stole silently away, and the crickets had begun to sing low and drowsily when something fell from the sky with a great crash and clatter and missed Mr. Bowser and his hammock by only a few inches.

"By the clubfooted king, but who did that?" he demanded as he rolled out to find that the "something" was an old tin pail.

He had scarcely uttered the words when an Early Rose potato whizzed by his ear and struck the fence with a bang, and it was followed by a Florida cabbage stalk which emitted a moaning sound as it grazed the top of his head. The cat realized that she wasn't in it and took a skip, but Mr. Bowser wasn't to be bluff.

"You reptiles, but I'll have you judged for this!" he shouted as he looked around and failed to locate any one. "Do you know?"

An old corset from an ash barrel came sailing his way like a vulture of the night, and he felt the fan of its wings as he ducked his head. Then there were missiles which, he believed, to be onions and tomatoes and green corn cobs and ancient lemons, and all he could do was to jump up and down and demand that his hidden foe stand forth and be slaughtered.

He thought he caught sight of some one on the alley fence, and he made a wild charge, but he had no sooner reached it than the heavens rained tin cans, bottles, old hats and shoes, and he was compelled to turn and flee for his life. Mrs. Bowser came down stairs to find him in the sitting room, white faced, his eyes and panting, and after a look at him she said:

"Have you got hardened up for the hot wave as soon as this?" "Woman, now dare you look me in the face?" he demanded as he turned on her. "Don't you suppose I know all about your little plot to have me killed, murdered, assassinated in my own back yard? I say, how dare?"

"You'd better come to bed," she quietly replied, and as she went upstairs he slowly followed and hadn't another word to say.

BUCK'S RANGEE

Cardigan

By ROBERT W. CHAMBERS

Copyright, 1901, by ROBERT W. CHAMBERS

As we entered the meadow at a trot I caught a good, quick picture of the pavilion, with its flags, its restless rows of ladies unmasking, fluttering kerchiefs and fans and scarfs, and my Lord Dunmore, all over gold and blue, blinking like a cat in the sun, and the crimson of the governor's mantle, clasped with gilt, falling from his solid epaulets. This I saw clearly, but as we broke into a gallop across the clover the colors ran like tinted dross—the dull reds and blues of the Indians, the shimmer on gorgets and buckles, the rippling flags—yet it seemed as I flew past that I had seen a face up there which I knew well, yet did not know, like those familiar eyes that look at us in dreams. Surely it was not Silver Heels. But there was no time for speculation now. Our brigade band was marching past, with our head groom playing a French horn very badly and old Norman McLeod a-filing it, wrong foot foremost.

"Hay foot! Straw foot!" snickered a cornet of dragons behind me, and I turned on him and gave him a look. "Did you say you were hungry?" I whispered, backing my horse gently against the horse of the insolent cornet.

"Hungry?" he stammered. "You mentioned hay, sir," I said fiercely.

He turned red as a poppin; but did not reply.

There was a sham battle of the troops too. It was a fine pageant and pleased all, and I was sorry when the last cartridge was spent and the brigade band played "God Save the King."

We followed Sir William to the pavilion, dismounting there to ascend the stairs and pay our respects to the governor and to Lord Dunmore.

"Come with me, Michael," said Sir William, wiping his face with his banker till it glistened, and I followed the haronet into the inclosure.

Lord Dunmore was tricked out like a painted actor, neither old nor young, but too white and pink and without any red blood in him as far as I could see. He wore a wig—it was said he possessed twenty and valued at $5,000—and his fingers, which I could see through the lace on his cuffs, were like white bird's claws loaded with jewels.

"Lud, Lud!" he said and felt a-simmering, with hands raised in feigned amazement at the magnificence of the review. "Lud, Lud, Sir William! A gallant fete! A brave fete! Militia, not regulars, you say? Sir William, a most creditable entraining!"

"My aid-de-camp, Lord Dunmore," said Sir William bluntly. "Your lordship will remember Captain Cardigan, who died before Quebec. His son, my lord, and my dear kinsman, Michael Cardigan, cornet in the hussars."

"Strike me!" snickered Lord Dunmore. "Strike me now, Sir William! He has his father's eyes, Sir William!"

At this remarkable discovery I bowed and said it was an honor to be considered like my father in any particular.

"Burn me!" murmured his lordship in an ecstasy at my natural response. "Burn me, Sir William, what a wit he has, now!" And he peeped at me, squeezing his eyes into two weak slits, and laid his snuffbox against his nose.

Apparently sufficed with admiration, he invited Sir William to take snuff with him; then, turning to Governor Tryon, who had just come into the stall, he fell to snuffing and God knows what until I, weary and cloyed, glanced around me at the crowd on the seats above us.

The governor passed by with his clanking dragons, among them the young jacksnaps who had presumed to sneer at our yeomanry, and we delivered a pair of scornful glances at each other which crossed like broad-swords.

And now my Lord Dunmore's boudoir on wheels drove up, and his purring lordship minced off in the midst of his flame colored Virginians.

One lady there was, in a mask and silvery cloak, who looked at me so long through the eye holes that I felt my heart begin a-beating, and another, too, in mask and rose mantle, who lifted the linen a trifle, displaying a fresh, sweet, smiling mouth. This one in rose turned twice to look at me, and it amused me to feel my heart go a-bumping at my ribs so loud, for she did truly resemble Marie Livingston.

Sir William and Colonel Claus had joined Lord Dunmore in his coach. Sir John and Colonel Butler attached themselves to our Governor Tryon. I abandoned, rode back to the Hall with a company of Virginians and dragons, wondering if ever I might acquire such horsemanship as the southerners displayed.

Coming to the Hall, I met Sir William, whose smiling face grew haggard at sight of me, and he drew me apart, asking of news from Quilder.

"He is not yet dead, sir," I replied, my heart aching for Sir William.

For a moment he stood staring at the ground, then, bidding me report to Mr. Duncan at the blockhouse, walked away to disguise his anxious visage again with the oldest mask in the world—a smile.

"That night Sir William provided a great banquet for our guests to honor Lord Dunmore and Governor Tryon.

There were gathered in the hallway and on the stairs a vast company of ladies and gentlemen when I came down from my little chamber to wait on Sir William. Here was the great Earl of Dunmore in a ring of glittering ladies, peering, bobbing, tapping his snuffbox, preening the lace on his cuffs, and I thought he resembled one of those irksome restless birds from the Canaries in a painted cage. There also strolled my impudent dragon and who had offended at the pavilion, and I will not deny he appeared to be an elegant and handsome officer.

Next I encountered Mr. Butler and honored him with a scowl, which displayed my country breeding, it being the fashion among quality to greet one's enemy with more elaborate courtesy than one accords to friends.

Suddenly it seemed as though the voice of Silver Heels sounded in my ears, and for a moment I stared about me, astonished that she should be here. But I could not find her. Then her voice sounded again, clear as a pebbled spring in all that chatter, and, turning, I saw it came from a young girl standing behind me. She was very delicate and pretty in her powder and patches, truly somewhat pale and lacking in plumpness, but with a pair of great hazel eyes like Silver Heels' and the child's full lips. Certainly she had Silver Heels' voice and her trick of widening her eyes, too, for now she perceived me, and—

"Why, Micky," she cried. "Silver Heels!" I stammered, striving to believe my eyes. What miracle of miracles had set her to grow tall and turn into a woman in a single week?

In her triumph she laughed that laugh of silver which sounded ever of woodlands and birds, the same laugh, the same gray eyes and the same satia fingers laid on my wrist.

Ere I could attempt to compose my thoughts, comes mining my impudent dragon, who seemed to know her, for he brought her a ribbon to tie above her elbow, explaining it was a new conceit from New York.

"It's this way," he explained, utterly ignoring my presence. "I tie this bow of blue above your elbow, so—with your gracious consent. Now for a partner to lead you to the table I seek some gentleman and tie a blue bow to his sword hilt."

"Pray tie it to Mr. Cardigan's," said Silver Heels mischievously. "I have much to say to him for his piece of mind."

"To deprive you of such an honor, sir," said he coolly, "I protest, reduces me to despair, but the light blue bows have already been awarded, Mr. Cardigan."

Instinctively I glanced at his own sword hilt, and there fluttered a light blue ribbon. At the same moment I perceived that Silver Heels had been perfectly aware of this.

Mortified as I was and stinging under the dragon's impudence, I controlled myself sufficiently to congratulate him and courteously deplore my own ill fortune without a grimace, though it stuck in my throat to say it.

"Let not your lady hear that!" said Silver Heels, with her fan hiding her lips. "How do you know, sir, which partner fate and Mr. Bevan may allot you?"

GOOD SPIRITS.

Good spirits don't all come from Kentucky. Their main source is the liver—and all the fine spirits ever made in the Blue Grass state, could not remedy a bad liver or the hundred and one ill effects it produces. You can't have good spirits and a bad liver at the same time. Your liver must be in fine condition if you would feel buoyant, happy and hopeful, bright of eye, light of step, vigorous and successful in your pursuits. You can put your liver in fine condition by using Green's August Flower—the greatest of all medicines for the liver and stomach and a certain cure for dyspepsia or indigestion. It has been a favorite household remedy for over thirty-five years. August Flower will make your liver healthy and active and thus insure you a liberal supply of "good spirits." Trial size, 25c; regular bottles 75c. For sale by DuBois, Kolb & Co.

Locks Nos. 1 and A, a part of the government project to canalize the Cumberland river, were Saturday formally dedicated and opened to public use with appropriate exercises, participated in by prominent Tennesseans.

Best Liniment on Earth.

Henry D. Baldwin, Supt. City Water Works, Shullsburg, Wis., writes: "I have tried many kinds of liniment, but I have never received much benefit until I used Ballard's Snow Liniment for rheumatism and pains. I think it the best liniment on earth." 25c, 50c, $1.00. Sold by DuBois, Kolb & Co.

BUNKER HILL AFLOAT

[Copyright, 1904, by T. C. McClure.]

The good ship Ranger had been chartered by the Chinese government to carry $100,000 in silver from Fuchau to Japan, and her crew of fourteen Americans were re-enforced by thirty Chinese soldiers, and two heavy cannons were mounted on our decks to bid defiance to pirates.

On the morning of our second day out, which happened to be on the 3d of July, we found a suspicious looking junk bearing down on us from the west. She ran down to within a mile of us, apparently established our identity to her satisfaction and then laid her course parallel with ours. As we had a light breeze all day, the junk held her own, and just at sundown two more craft of her size came down on us from the lee of the Chinchin Islands. Word must have been sent on at least three days ahead of us that we were a treasure ship.

Night closed down with the three junks a mile to windward, and each of them held its position through the long hours. We could have gone off to leeward and made a stern chase of it, or we could have turned and hoped that they would not dare to follow.

"No, I'll be hanged if I do!" shouted Captain White when the crew gathered aft and asked him if he should take that course. "I'm bound for Japan under charter, and if there were six junks instead of three I wouldn't vary a point from my course. Darn an American who'll run away from anything! They won't attack till morning, and tomorrow is the glorious Fourth. We'll dress the ship and then dress the pirates."

We would have daylight at 4 o'clock, and when the first signs of dawn came stealing over the waters there was wind enough to do with the Ranger as we saw fit.

Every flag we had aboard, no matter what the nationality, was hoisted, and in addition to them the steward was ordered to make other flags of the cabin sheets and tablecloths, and every blue or red shirt in the men's chests was likewise converted into bunting.

The old craft must have had a queer look to the pirates, and when she abated the day with a salute of cannon and small arms, followed by three rousing cheers, the fellows must have wondered what sort of a menagerie they had been following during the night. The cook had breakfast at once, and by sunrise we were waiting for a move on the part of the junks. Then the native officer was sent for, and Captain White asked:

"Well, are you going to fight?" "If not too many come," was the reply.

"Too many, you snab sided son of a gun! What difference does it make to us how many there are? Trot out your gang while I give them a word or two."

The Chinese soldiers came shuffling forward, and one glance was enough to show that they had no heart for a fight.

"You miserable, cowardly trash!" shouted the captain as he caught one of the gang and lifted him off his feet and cracked his heels together. "Now, then, are you going to help us? Wake up here and listen to me! You'll either fight like devils or we'll chuck you overboard to the sharks. Mates, take hold and help me to kick some grit into their cowardly hearts."

It was the funniest scene ever witnessed before a battle. For ten minutes we booted the soldiers up and down the decks, with the crew laughing and cheering, and we ceased kicking only when they promised to do their full duty. They feared our boot toes more than the cannon of the junks. They were scattered along between the guns, where our men could keep an eye on them, and we were all on our stations when one of the junks flew a signal and the three bore down on us.

Our ordinance was twelve pounders, with fuse shell for the first charges, and there was hardly a whisper among the men as the foremost junk came sailing down to get us within range of her four pound pieces. The captain let her loose to within two cable lengths and then gave the order to fire. Two starboard guns were discharged at almost the same second, and the men on the decks with the crew laughing and cheering, and we ceased kicking only when they promised to do their full duty. They feared our boot toes more than the cannon of the junks. They were scattered along between the guns, where our men could keep an eye on them, and we were all on our stations when one of the junks flew a signal and the three bore down on us.

Judge Sanders Investigates a Few Cases.

Nothing Yet Learned in the Wood Jones Case—Little in Circuit Court.

NEWS OF THE OTHER COURTS

Police Judge D. L. Sanders held a brief session of police court this morning. There was one important felony case held open again, and an amusing termination brought about in the case against Ed May, colored charged with a breach of the peace.

Yesterday morning at the close of court Jimmie Bush, a large, bulky negro with a crippled hand and very much imposed on appearance, entered Judge Sanders' office and demanded a warrant for Ed Mayo.

The judge ordered Bush to procure witnesses, which he did, and it developed this morning that Bush was as much the aggressor as Mayo and moreover that Hester Stovall, colored, was also mixed up in the case and guilty of a breach of the peace. The Stovall woman had sworn out a warrant against Mayo in addition to that taken out by Bush. The trial resulted in a fine of $5 and costs against each, the second warrant against Mayo being dismissed.

The case against Wood Jones, white, charged with the theft of $98 from C. L. Carman, of Mayfield, is still hanging fire. It was stated that William Hollier, of Mayfield, saw Jones take the money, but when he was brought to the city this morning by Jailer David Record, Hollier being in jail serving a term for bootlegging, the witnesses denied that he knew anything about the matter.

Judge Sanders thinks there is more in the case than the witnesses are willing to tell, and is determined to probe it to the bottom. He left it open for further evidence.

Ed Lyles, L. S. Holland and Zelner Moss who had a difficulty on a depot line car last night, were arraigned for a breach of the peace. Lyles was fined $10 and costs, Moss and Holland $5 and costs and the action against Will Clements and Lyles, a separate warrant charging breach of the peace, was continued until tomorrow.

The street car motorman and Clements, the conductor, claim several ladies got off the car because of the language and it was here that Clements and Lyles got into the fight. The action against Lyles and Clements for fighting will come up tomorrow.

F. H. Miller, white, charged with drunkenness was dismissed. He was found roaming about in a half crazed condition with a broken arm. He claims that the pain from his arm was what hurt him.

Frank Hall, white, was fined $1 and costs for drunkenness.

The case against Bill South, white, for drunk and disorderly was continued until tomorrow.

Jeff Frame, white, was fined $1 and costs for being drunk.

SEEKING THE LOST

Mr. Roy Broadfoot Goes to Chicago and St. Louis.

Is in Quest of Charles Mason, His Brother-in-Law.

Mr. Roy Broadfoot, of the city, has gone to St. Louis and Chicago to seek Charles Rudolf Mason, the missing coal dealer of South Third street. Mr. Mason, as told yesterday, has been gone over two weeks, and for a week or more nothing has been heard from him.

His relatives have hopes of finding him, however. "He is believed to have been held up, robbed and hurt, if not killed, or perhaps suddenly became ill. No other theories are advanced at present. Mr. Broadfoot expects to be gone until he has thoroughly investigated the disappearance of his brother-in-law.

Because of the absence of Mr. Mason his relatives have sent his picture and description to the Pinkerton agency at Chicago with the hope that the detectives will locate him.

This afternoon a relative stated that they expected a reply from the Pinkerton men by night, as the agency would receive the letter probably this morning and begin working on the case at once. The nearest trace that any one has been able to secure of the missing young man was secured in Chicago. A business man with whom Mr. Mason had business, invited him to dine with him and Mason did not show up. An inquiry at the hotel showed that he had left there. The Chicago people Mason knew think that he never left Chicago and has probably met with foul play.

NO BETTER

MR. H. C. BRONAUGH'S CONDITION UNCHANGED.

The last information received in Paducah from the bedside of Mr. H. C. Bronaugh was last night when a telegram announced that his condition was unchanged. Further news is expected by his friends and relatives in Paducah, today. Mr. James E. English and Dr. J. D. Robertson are now at his bedside.

HOW IS YOUR LIVER?

IS A FORM OF GREETING IN MANY SECTIONS, AND RECOGNIZES THE IMPORTANT FUNCTIONS OF THAT ORGAN.

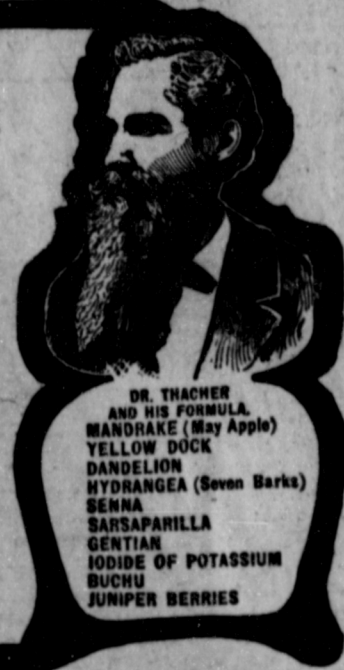

A disordered liver bears its legitimate fruit—Kidney diseases, with their stealthy fatality, diseases of the heart and lungs, skin diseases, constipation, rheumatism, stomach troubles. If the liver is diseased it is impossible for you to be well. Don't doctor the symptoms; remove the cause.

Dr. Thacher's Liver & Blood Syrup Cures

by going directly to the source of the disease and curing the cause. If your liver and kidneys are healthy and your blood pure, you will die of old age, barring accidents. There are numerous "Liver regulators," "Kidney remedies" and "Blood purifiers," some of them probably good for the one thing, but Dr. Thacher's Liver and Blood Syrup is the only preparation on the market that contains all the recognized best remedies for the liver, kidneys and blood, accurately and scientifically combined. POLICE NOTES

Minstrel Man Loses His Pocket Book and Money.

A Number of Small, Unimportant Matters About the City Hall.

Mr. George Avolo, the acrobat with A. G. Field, dropped his pocketbook containing $60 in cash and $200 in money orders yesterday or last night, and has been unable to find it. He supposes he dropped it out of his pocket in the lobby of the New Richmond hotel. The money orders were made payable to his order at Columbus, Ohio, and he has telegraphed to stop payment.

A man, supposed to be a burglar, entered a rear window at the Hart house, on North Fourth street near Monroe, early last evening and was rummaging around in a drawer searching for something to steal when interrupted and driven away. It could not be ascertained whether he was black or white.

The young man named Burtram, who Friday night claimed to have been so badly beaten up at a West Kentucky street saloon, was probably in the wrong himself, as he swore out no warrant and has disappeared.

F. H. Miller, who was in a traveling show, was arrested Sunday and it has developed that one arm is broken. He does not know how it happened, he claims. City Physician Bob Myers attended him, and he is still in the lockup.

The police at the depot beat were yesterday morning early called to settle an unusual dispute. The members of a theatrical company that was passing through, and intended to be in the city but a few hours, attempted to make the ladies waiting room at the I. C. depot a lodging house. There is a handsomely furnished room adjoining the general waiting room, intended only for ladies, and men are not permitted there. Some of the members of the troupe, however, men as well as women, in preference to going up into the city for the remainder of the night, attempted to stow themselves away in the ladies' waiting room and refused to vacate. A lively controversy arose and the police were called to assist them, which was done, and the lights were turned out. The actors and actresses were told that the waiting room was not a rooming establishment.

Has Returned From St. Louis and Resumes His Labors.

Rev. R. W. Chiles returned last night from St. Louis, where he attended a conference of Home Mission Workers. Reports were made from St. Louis, Kansas City, Springfield, Mo., Springfield, Ill., Oklahoma city, Los Angeles, Cleveland, Ohio, and many other places, and showed the great work being done along this line. Mr. Chiles succeeded in securing a place for a young woman who formerly lived here, in the Hepzibah Rescue Mission, in St. Louis, while he was there.

The people are urged to attend the Rescue Mission tonight at 7:30, as Mr. Chiles has something important to tell them.

A fine boy baby about three weeks old, was given to Mrs. Chiles' care today at the Rescue Mission, and she will endeavor to get it a good home.

THE COURT ROOMS YEILD UP LITTLE

Judge Sanders Investigates a Few Cases.

Nothing Yet Learned in the Wood Jones Case—Little in Circuit Court.

NEWS OF THE OTHER COURTS

Police Judge D. L. Sanders held a brief session of police court this morning. There was one important felony case held open again, and an amusing termination brought about in the case against Ed May, colored charged with a breach of the peace.

Yesterday morning at the close of court Jimlin Bush, a large, bony negro with a crippled hand and very much imposed on appearance, entered Judge Sanger's office and demanded a warrant for Ed Mayo.

The judge ordered Bush to procure witnesses, which he did, and it developed this morning that Bush was as much the aggressor as Mayo and moreover that Hester Stovall, colored, was also mixed up in the case and guilty of a breach of the peace. The Stovall woman had sworn out a warrant against Mayo in addition to that taken out by Bush. The trial resulted in a fine of $5 and costs against each, the second warrant against Mayo being dismissed.

The case against Wood Jones, white, charged with the theft of $98 from C. L. Carman, of Mayfield, is still hanging fire. It was stated that William Hollier, of Mayfield, saw Jones take the money, but when he was brought to the city this morning by Jailor David Record, Hollier being in jail serving a term for bootlegging, the witnesses denied that he knew anything about the matter.

Judge Sanders thinks there is more in the case than the witnesses are willing to tell, and is determined to probe it to the bottom. He left it open for further evidence.

Ed. Lyles, L. S. Holland and Zeller Moss who had a difficulty on a depot line car last night, were arraigned for a breach of the peace. Lyles was fined $10 and costs, Moss and Holland $5 and costs and the action against Will Clements and Lyles, a separate warrant charging breach of the peace, was continued until tomorrow.

The street car motorman and Clements, the conductor, claim several ladies got off the car because of the language and it was here that Clements and Lyles got into the fight. The action against Lyles and Clements for fighting will come up tomorrow.

F. H. Miller, white, charged with drunkenness was dismissed. He was found roaming about in a half crazed condition with a broken arm. He claims that the pain from his arm was what hurt him.

Frank Hall, white, was fined $1 and costs for drunkenness.

The case against Bill South, white, for drunk and disorderly was continued until tomorrow.

Jeff Frame, white, was fined $1 and costs for being drunk.

SEEKING THE LOST

Mr. Roy Broadfoot Goes to Chicago and St. Louis.

Is in Quest of Charles Mason, His Brother-in-Law.

Mr. Roy Broadfoot, of the city, has gone to St. Louis and Chicago to seek Charles Rudolf Mason, the missing coal dealer of South Third street. Mr. Mason, as told yesterday, has been gone over two weeks, and for a week or more nothing has been heard from him.

His relatives have hopes of finding him, however. He is believed to have been held up, robbed and hurt, if not killed, or perhaps suddenly became ill. No other theories are advanced at present. Mr. Broadfoot expects to be gone until he has thoroughly investigated the disappearance of his brother-in-law.

Because of the absence of Mr. Mason his relatives have sent his picture and description to the Pinkerton agency at Chicago with the hope that the detectives will locate him.

This afternoon a relative stated that they expected a reply from the Pinkerton men by night, as the agency would receive the letter probably this morning and begin working on the case at once. The nearest trace that any one has been able to secure of the missing young man was secured in Chicago. A business man with whom Mr. Mason had business, invited him to dine with him and Mason did not show up. An inquiry at the hotel showed that he had left there. The Chicago people Mason knew think that he never left Chicago and has probably met with foul play.

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 29.—The Kentucky delegates to congress will leave this week for Washington to take part in the deliberations of the short session. The Hon. Godfrey Hunter, will have his hands full at the session attending to the contest made against him by D. C. Edwards. Instead of abandoning the contest after his election this fall it is said by Mr. Edwards' friends that he will push the matter.
